

AEA voted environmental consultancy with best reputation for climate change and renewables by peers.

AEA has been voted the environmental consultancy with the best reputation for climate change and renewable by consultants at the 2008 Sustainable Business Awards. AEA were also runners-up in the environmental consultancy with best reputation for climate change and renewable as voted by customers.

Commenting on the awards, Gill Hall, Director of Sales and Marketing at AEA said:

“Climate change is acknowledged as the biggest environmental challenge our society faces today. Right now, we face the task of working our way through and beyond a recession whilst also trying to decarbonise our economies. As a leading advisor to the British Government and the EU as well as a number of blue chip companies, AEA has developed many innovative ways to help mitigate the threat of climate change and enable businesses to compete more effectively. The fact that consultants across the country have recognised our expertise is a great endorsement for AEA.”
